Changes to your PEC bill

We've made some changes to your PEC bill to give you a better idea of the Co-op's costs. Starting with bills rendered in June, you'll see an additional line item for transmission cost of service (TCOS). This is not a new charge, as TCOS was previously included in the base power cost and is a state-imposed charge. Line item billing for franchise fees began in May, so if you have a meter within a franchise fee area, you'll see this cost.

PEC Bill Features Defined

- Service Availability Charge is included on each bill, regardless of how many kilowatt-hours are used during a service period. The fee recoups a portion of the cost of installing, operating and maintaining distribution lines, transformers, substations and meters that make up the distribution grid connected to your location. Other costs include meter reading, billing, maintaining customer records and additional administrative expenses.
- Delivery Charge ($ per kwh use) recovers costs for delivering electricity that are driven by the number of kwh delivered.
- Base Power Cost ($ per kwh use) is combined with the PCA to equal what PEC pays power suppliers for the electricity purchased for members.
- Transmission Cost of Service is the cost incurred for using the state ERCOT transmission system to deliver power to members.
- Power Cost Adjustment ($ per kwh) represents the change in the Base Power Cost to allow actual power costs to be passed on to members.
- Franchise Fee is the amount a city charges the Cooperative for use of municipal streets, alleys or public ways to deliver electricity within the city limits.
